Editorial

I spend up to eight hours a day looking at a computer screen on working days, therefore I am not keen on going through the web during my non-work time to find news and information. I tend to get news from the ODT, Radio NZ, sometimes Stuff, the Spinoff and TV.

When tragedies happen around the world – news reports are about the latest tragedy. For weeks we have had reports about what is going on in Ukraine – and yes, it is appalling and the world needs to know – but, before that, there was a devastating volcanic eruption in Tonga where such terrible damage was done. I had to really hunt around to find out what is happening over there, and it turns out that they have got a serious problem trying to rebuild the place; not newsworthy apparently.

Similarly, I spent some time on the web trying to find out what is happening in Afghanistan. It turns out that some educational opportunities are opening up for some women and girls again but there is widespread famine, partly because of the frozen funds and actions taken by other countries. The USA is currently trying to get $7M of aid into Afghanistan but doing it by bypassing the Taliban who are reported as siphoning off aid monies that for their own personal use. To be fair there was an article that said journalists there (that is, the ones who were not murdered) had to flee from the country which explains how it is difficult to get news from there. It is an ongoing mess.

There are some awful things happening in the Congo and other African countries with very bloody civil wars or fights between warlords where the civilians get caught in the crossfire. This has been going on for some time and I am assuming that it is no longer worth headlines because it has been going on for years, or because it is Africa or ????

Something that mainstream Fourth Estate is waking up to is the movement based on disinformation and misinformation; some of which we saw in Wellington with the occupation of Parliament grounds and environs. In the USA, Trump is attracting a wide following with his assertions that the last election was rigged; and his mantra to make America great again. This is on the back of investigations and court cases about the election where no evidence was found to show foul play. There are stadiums filled with people at his rallies. In Arizona, a Governor candidate is Kari Lake who firmly believes what Trump is saying. She has a considerable following.

Commentators are fearful that if Trump runs for president again, there will be a serious civil uprising if he loses the election; and on the other hand, if he wins, he will take a wrecking ball again to democracy, international agreements, and progressive social and economic practices.

On the edge of that are a number of super-far-right men who make a living live streaming their rhetoric (anti-Jew, anti-anyone not white, and anti-women) where followers make donations during streaming. Nick Fuentes an American who is 22 is an example – he has around 10,000 people following his live streams. The chilling thing about Fuentes is that he says he is Christian. I don't know if what he says is just about making money, but his followers believe what he says and pay for it. It must be stressful thinking hateful thoughts every day.

My beliefs and mindset concerning Jesus Christ and God must be viewed as weird and based on misinformation to many who either don't believe in God or never give it any thought. But I can have my belief and thoughts without needing to deride others.

Mainstream media controls what we see and hear as news, but I am grateful that I don't have to go searching for news. If we want to delve deeper and follow up on things that have happened, we must get on line and search. What can be found there is seldom good, and can leave me feeling sick and powerless to help. Maybe that's why I don't like spending much time online.

When "the world" crowds in, my mind turns to one of my favourite Colin Gibson hymns:

*In this familiar place I know the mystery of your grace.
For the love that I receive, for the truth that I believe,
I praise and thank you for this here and now. (AA72)*

That is my truth.

Parish Council and Church News

The Parish Council met on 17 March.

It was agreed that a service of readings would be held in the church on Good Friday (15 April) at 10 a.m.

The parish remains pretty much Covid-free, and so normal services are continuing. We are monitoring the situation and will let everyone know promptly if anything needs to be changed (e.g. cancellation of communion).

The Property and Finance Committee has done a thorough church grounds and building review and has identified 29 matters that need attention or consideration and is working to sort out an order of priority for action.

Kia ora koutou,

Consider the words of Psalm 133

- 1. How good and pleasant it is when God's people live in unity!
- 2. It is like precious oil poured on the head, running down on the beard, running down on Aaron's beard, down on the collar of his robe.
- 3. It is as if the dew of Hermon were falling on Mount Zion. For there the Lord bestows his blessing, even life for evermore.

News

Some churches are investigating the instalment of solar panels on their roof. Chartwell Church (Hamilton) say they would welcome other churches to partner with them

Stories

Tawa Anglican has been an eco-church less than a year. They started by a big discussion and decided to have 'second thought Sunday' when they would revisit the topics and give more people an opportunity to contribute. They are concentrating on the trips to and from church in a bid to reduce road pollution.

St Alban's Church (Anglican, Pauatahanui, Wellington) is a heritage church and, with a partner church, conducted a full assessment of their existing ways of worship. They contacted the Regional Council for traps for the local vermin and have been using them. Native bush restoration has begun. At Matariki, they invited a member of their local M ori community to speak at the service. There is also a weekly co-op for crops, surplus food etc. at the church. One parishioner compiled a Low Carbon Cookbook, which is being sold in aid of Covid vaccines for developing countries. A beach clean-up was held during Sunday service time.

Fellowship Group

2 p.m. on Thursday 14 April n Morrison Lounge

Fellowship Group will meet in its usual venue, the Morrison Lounge. You are all very welcome to come along. Please wear your mask and sign in – we will have a sign-in sheet available.

Busy Fellowship members in January: Evelyn with her 29 peggy squares, and Val with cuttings she is propagating.

Our March meeting was cancelled, in light of the high transmission rates of Covid. We are looking forward to meeting again this month, with the focus on getting to know each other.

An important part of Fellowship Group meetings is our participation in the Fellowship of the Least Coin, as we bring along our least coins each month.

After a time of conversation, we have a cup of tea or coffee, accompanied by delicious baking (thank you Chris and Miriam), at around 3 p.m., and we finish by 4 p.m.

Andrea Johnston

To make a cash donation for the Food Bank, visit www.psotago.org.nz

Operation Cover Up

Please keep making peggy squares out of wool or a warm wool mix, 20cmx20cm, and drop them off at the church. We send the blankets off in July so we have a few months left to get a good number ready. Three blankets have been completed so far.

Wool and instructions are in the bag on the back pew. Contact me if you need help at 027 473 6026 or weavermariane@gmail.com

A New Satellite

We tend to take the satellites that fly high above us for granted, but one that has recently joined them may interest you. Sentinel-6 Martin Freilich (named after a former technical director at NASA) was put up by NASA and its European counterpart to be the most accurate measurer of sea levels. There have been such satellites for the last 30 years and this one is the latest in a line of them.

Measuring the sea levels is very important from the view of Climate Change. First, we must know what the sea level should be based on, what it has been for some time. Then, if the level rises due to climate change, melting icepack, warmed up glaciers etc. the fact that it has risen and by how much will be measured, making it possible to project forward. A dramatic number of the developments of our civilisation are by the sea, just as we are.
