Imagine

*“Imagine no possessions
I wonder if we can
No need for greed or hunger
A brother/sisterhood of man
Imagine all the people
Sharing all the world ...”*
John Lennon

Men and women have imagined down the centuries what it would be like to live in communities where there was ‘no need for greed or hunger’ and ‘the world was shared’. In the Acts of the Apostles, Luke writes of the sharing of possessions among the believers, and how possessions and goods were sold so that anyone who had need could be looked after. It’s a snapshot of church life, illustrating how those who followed the Way in Jerusalem cared for each other.

There is another document in early church history, known as The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles, commonly called the Didache, which also provides a snapshot of an early Christian community (possibly a non-Pauline church, perhaps located in the semi-desert zones of Syria and Palestine). Since I was first introduced to the Didache [pronounced dee-dah-kay] as a religious studies student in the 1980s, I have been intrigued by the portrait it paints of a transitional period in the life of the new ‘Jesus movement’, and how much knowledge it can give us of the diversity within early Christianity as it emerged from Judaism and interacted with the Gentile world. It is well worth studying as an adjunct to the Acts of the Apostles.

Briefly, the Didache may contain some of the oldest known non-canonical Christian writing, earlier even than some of the New Testament letters, and it is thought to be a compilation of early and later materials which reached its present form in about mid-second century. The only known manuscript (written in 1056) was discovered by P. Bryennius at the Jerusalem monastery of the Holy Sepulchre at Constantinople in 1875 and published by him in 1883.

(It has been pointed out by scholars that in its attitude to property the Didache includes the earliest reference outside of the New Testament to the commonality of goods of which Acts speaks).

The Didache is essentially a Christian manual on morals and church practice, and its main principle is its distinction between ‘two ways, one of life and one of death’, and the manual gives the new convert a list of ‘dos’ and ‘don’ts’ to help the new convert to follow the right way.

To summarise, the regulations are designed to help the new believer carry out his or her new duties of loving God and loving one’s neighbour. The believer should be upright, humble, patient, merciful, harmless, quiet and good. A tall order perhaps, but the community rites of baptism and eucharist, together with the leadership of bishops and deacons meant that guidance was always at hand. For the interested reader the Didache provides, in a concentrated way, the essential features of a new form of religious expression which pays tribute to its past, but looks forward to a transformed society.

The text of the Didache is available on the internet, along with commentaries and studies.

Parish Council News

Covid and cold weather meant that it made sense to hold the Parish Council meeting on 16 June via Zoom – Philip Somerville was able to join discussions from Palmerston North.

The Council has approved a parish Health and Safety Manual and has recorded its gratitude to John Roxborough and other members of the Property and Finance Committee in putting it together. The manual sets out many of our current procedures and also provides processes and guidance for various situations that might arise.

It has been decided to err on the side of caution and to continue with not having morning tea after our services. The position will be reviewed at the July meeting of the Council.

Marian Weaver has been asked to bring together an informal working group to develop a way of proceeding with an EcoChurch survey tool intended to enable congregations to live more kindly in relation to the environment. Marian has also taken on responsibility for developing ways of reporting on the environmental impact (especially carbon emissions) of parish operations in our annual reports.

Congratulations...

... to Kirsten and Florian Beyer (and Kirsten’s parents, Tui and Mark Bevin) on the safe arrival of Michael John Peter Beyer on 3 May, weighing 3.81kg – a little brother for Rosalie and James.

Property and Finance Update

Lots of activity has been under way over the last months and we (the Property and Finance Committee) thought it would be good to share our progress:

- Church bell repair – thanks to Michael and Brett Ransome.
- Upgrade of the sound system and installation of a monitor so the minister can see what’s on the screen – thanks to John and Blair Mason (Miriam’s son) from Strawberry Sound and Kirk for donating a stand.
- Replacement of the kitchen taps under the Zip.
- Replacement and installation of new fire alarms – thanks to the Willowbank Fire Service who donated and installed the alarms and to Michael for organising this.
- Clearing of garden by fence line with our Farquharson Street neighbours and shrub planting – thanks to Michael and Jason our church neighbours (who also are happy to receive our cabbage tree leaves for fire starters).
- Mould cleaning in toilets – under way and Michael is on a mission here.
- Gardens clean up – Benjamin has been tidying up paths and gardens. Thank you to those other church members who come and do a tidy up in their own time.
- Updated key register.
- Opoho Church Health and Safety Policy - thanks to John for his work on this

Plans under way

- We are looking at quotes for drainage repair – we have spring water seepage in the front garden by the hall and also in the back garden.
- We are thinking big and getting an assessment of costs for roof repair.
- Planning for a spring fling inside and outside working bee.
- We are on a mission to get garden seats and furniture and a new rug for the Morrison Lounge.

Thank you for letting us know what needs repaired or improved and please contact anyone on the Committee to pass on your thoughts. We want to be the very best custodians of our lovely grounds and building and thoughtfully manage and monitor church finances. Miriam facilitates a 'crisp' monthly meeting in the Morrison Lounge on a Wednesday night – the challenge she sets is to keep it to one hour. We enjoy each other's company. If you want to know more – talk with us.

From your P&F team – John Roxborough, Michael Ovens, Benjamin Thew, Miriam Vollweiler (convener), Brian Cunningham, and Judy Rodda

Donations to Opoho Presbyterian Church

Thank you to all those who participate in the life of our church and help make it possible to support its work. If you are not already an electronic donor through online banking and would like to donate in this way, the details are:

ANZ bank, Opoho Presbyterian Deacons' Court;
Account Number: 06 0909 0010868 000.

Please put your name and the word Donation in the data fields. It would be helpful if you could let our Treasurer, Judy Rodda, know, so that receipts for charitable donations can be sent to you. Her email is Judith L Rodda opohopcbusiness@gmail.com

As well as regular outgoings there are maintenance items on the building and grounds which we will be seeking to raise funds for over the next few years. If you are interested in supporting these, please be in touch.

We acknowledge that people's circumstances are personal, and that they vary over time and with things that happen in our lives. It is important to know that there will be times when it is appropriate to reduce your giving to the church, and you do not need to apologise for doing that.

The income and expenditure of the church is examined each month by the Property and Finance Committee and reported to the Parish Council. The church's financial year runs to the end of June and an annual budget is presented to the congregation at the Annual Meeting.

Thank you.

Property and Finance Committee

Operation Cover Up

In this last year we created nine blankets which will be on their way to their final destination in Eastern Europe as you read this. That is a remarkable effort and thanks to all who provided wool, knitted, and contributed to shipping costs. All the blankets were in church on 19 June and Mary Somerville spoke a lovely prayer to bless them, and those who will use them.

This means another year for Operation Cover Up has begun and there is new wool in the bag that has been tidied up. Any queries please contact me at 027 473 6026 or weavermariane@gmail.com

Thank you so much to all who contribute now, and have contributed in the past, to these activities.

If you find you are unable to do your rostered duty, please arrange for someone else to take your place. Let Gregor know of the change, so that he can update the Order of Service and contact the right people for readings and prayers.

Morning Tea: Please arrange for one person to bring milk, and to take it home again afterwards. There are biscuits in a drawer in the kitchen. Home baking is welcome, too.

Door duty: Before you leave, please make sure all the doors are locked; all the lights are turned off; and any candles have been put out.

This is an initiative by the Dunedin City Council to rid areas of predators that affect native bush and birds. Their website states:

“Our vision is to create a vibrant sanctuary across Dunedin City through community-led predator control in backyards and reserves.

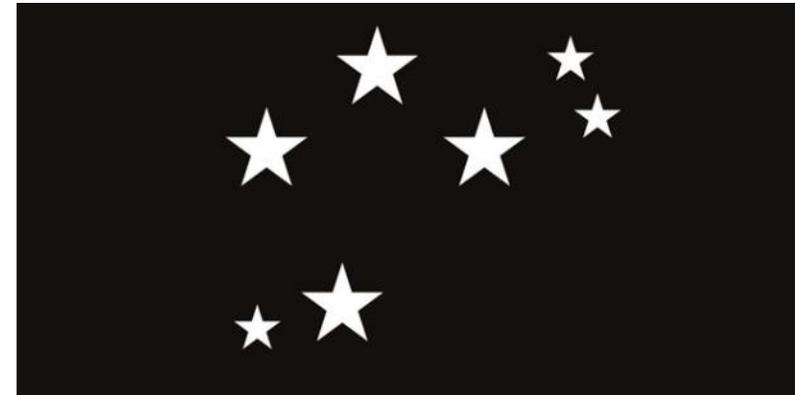

Spanning over 8,000 hectares, we are supporting the movement for a Predator Free Dunedin by connecting large-scale predator control efforts already underway on the Peninsula and to the North of Dunedin.”

The website www.citysanctuary.nz/ invites residents to sign up, where we can become a volunteer, or hire a trap, or use other resources to identify what is in your backyard.

Interfaith Matters

At our last meeting, in early June, because of Matariki coming, the theme chosen for discussion was “the Heavens”.

For me this took me back to my own dad – he said he was an agnostic, but get him out camping under a clear sky at night and a serious reverence for something bigger than ourselves was very evident. From all faiths (and perhaps in Dad’s case none) came the wonderful quality of the numinous* in relation to the heavens.

Satellite Swarms

SpaceX have launched into space around Earth 2,300 satellites, comprising half of all the satellites currently in orbit. They plan to put up as many again. These are providing internet connections. Unfortunately, these satellites reflect the sun and move in the sky faster than stars do. This means that they can interfere with the observations of astronomers around the world who need a dark sky. The International Astronomers' Union has a website that allows tracking of where the satellites are so that telescopes can be pointed in another direction. The Vera C. Rubin Observatory, funded by the USA and being built in Chile, will photograph the entire night sky every three days and will be particularly vulnerable to satellite streaks trailing through its images. Astronomers are working on an algorithm that will remove satellite streaks from the data, but this takes time and effort.

The growing number of satellites can interfere with radio astronomy too and many contribute to space debris in time. They can be part of a background glow to the night sky that will disorientate animals and birds that rely on celestial navigation. They can also interfere with human knowledge, where stars are relied upon to determine special dates, for example Matariki. Representatives of many nations were due to meet under the auspices of the United Nations on 1 June to discuss the protection of the night sky.
